

AWAIT NEWS FROM MUKDEN

Authorities at St. Petersburg Are Anxious Regarding the Situation Today.

NOTHING DEFINITE IS LEARNED

Reports of Fighting and Flank Movements Leave the Russian Capital in Much Doubt as to The Truth.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 21.—This capital awaits news from the seat of war around Mukden with extreme anxiety. Vague reports of fighting and significant movements have been sent in, but nothing definite can be learned. The suspense engendered by the Japanese attack on Poutlior hill continues. This movement has proved unsuccessful. It aimed merely to capture a Russian position, but whether it was intended to mask activity at some other point along the front has not developed.

Battle Awaits Port Arthur.
Some correspondents note what they consider "significant" Japanese movements on the Russian right and others that a Japanese column is moving fifty or sixty miles eastward, but the opinion in military circles seems to be that no great battle is likely to take place before the fate of Port Arthur is decided.

At the same time it is recalled that General Kuropatkin's great aggressive movement of last month was in full swing a week before the outside world realized what was occurring.

Agree on North Sea Treaty.
Ratifications of the Anglo-Russian North sea convention will be exchanged here between Foreign Minister Lansdowne and Ambassador Hardinge. The principal modification of the British text of the convention as finally accepted by both powers will consist in clearly imposing on the commission the task of locating the blame, irrespective of persons or nationality.

Both the American and the French governments have been informally apprised that they are expected to select members of the commission. To obviate delay Emperor Frederick Joseph

INDEPENDENT DEALERS ARE ON THE WAR PATH AGAIN

Tobacco Trust Is To Be Fought...Philadelphia To Be the War Center...Fight for Existence.

(Special to The Gazette.)
New York, Nov. 21.—The American Tobacco company, one of the greatest of all trusts, is about to enter upon a warfare such as has never before confronted it. The independent manufacturers, jobbers and retail dealers have at last taken the initiative with a sweeping declaration of war. Already the preliminary skirmish has been begun in Philadelphia, which promises to be the storm center.

The prime movers in the fight against the domination of the trade by the trust are the leading independent dealers in this city. They say they have been driven into the fight by trade conditions thrust upon them by the American Tobacco company. With them it has come to a question of existence. The leaders of the movement declare they have been so harassed by the monopoly that their profits are reduced to a mere pittance.

Fire First Gun of War.
The first gun in the battle of millions was fired in Philadelphia a week ago, when the trust dropped a shell into the camp of the jobbers and dealers who are known to be hostile to its interests.

Without the formality of a notice the American Tobacco company withdrew all of its trade restrictions and

LATE NEWS FROM THE SEAT OF WAR

Port Arthur Is Liable to Fall at Any Minute Just Now.

(Special by Scripps-Mellae.)
Tokio, Nov. 21.—On November 19th the Japanese squadron cruising off Yantai sighted a vessel steaming for Port Arthur. The gunboat Tatsuta overhauled her and it proved to be a German steamer by the name of Batolan, which was trying to run the blockade. It was loaded with winter clothing, blankets, medicine and canned meats. The vessel was taken to Sasebo. A dispatch from Chefoo says that according to a Japanese officer just arrived from Daini, a general attack upon Port Arthur was not resumed. It is expected the next attack will be a tremendous affair. More reinforcements are coming in to support Gen. Nogai than those dispatched to Oyama. The Japanese are constructing coast defense forts at Pigeon bay, which is believed to indicate they expect to defend Port Arthur themselves in the near future. A dispatch just received announces the Japanese have undermined and occupied the countercarp of Fort Ehrjungschan on Saturday. This is one of the principal forts of Port Arthur.

FRENCH CHOIR SINGER CHANTS SELF INTO JAIL

Ambition and Overstudy Dethrone Man's Reason and He Disturbs Services in Catholic Church.

New York, Nov. 21.—Ernest Surbley, who has been married a little over a year, is detained in the psychopathic ward at Bellevue hospital awaiting examination as to his sanity, following a dramatic incident at St. Patrick's cathedral in Fifth avenue. Surbley is an expert woodcarver. Ambition and overstudy are given as the cause for his condition. In his boyhood he was a choir singer in a Paris church. Surbley at 10 o'clock mass Sunday sat in the rear of the cathedral. The church was crowded. When the priests walked upon the altar and began to chant the service Surbley, in a clear tenor voice, followed the chant, and his voice could be heard above that of the altar boys and the priests. When asked to stop, Surbley continued chanting. A policeman was summoned and he was taken to Bellevue.

FARMER KILLS DITCH DIGGER

Owner Objects to Contractor Engaging in His Work on the Sabbath Day.

HAD ORDERED HIM OFF THE FARM

Seeing His Father and Uncle Getting the Worst of the Melee, a Young Man Used His Revolver Freely.

(Special by Scripps-Mellae.)
Charlotte, Mich., Nov. 21.—George Tubbs, one of the richest farmers in the country and one of the foremost stock-breeders in this section, shot and instantly killed John Bouts, a ditch contractor. Bouts had the contract for digging the Nyo drain, a large portion of which traversed the Tubbs farm. He had already completed 120 rods of the drain on the Tubbs property himself and two of his men started to work Sunday morning to complete the drain before cold weather.

Bouts had hardly unloaded his equipment when Levi Tubbs, father of George, ordered him off the place, objecting to his working on Sunday. At the same time he took hold of Bouts as if he intended to put him off the premises with force. Bouts resisted, whereupon the elder Tubbs struck at him with a club. Bouts escaped the blow and in taking the club tore the old man's finger quite badly. In the melee which followed the elder Tubbs received a blow on the head, inflicting a slight cut.

Goes to Brother's Aid.
Charles Tubbs, a brother of Levi, saw that his brother was getting the worst of the struggle and he stepped in to help him. Cecil Powers, an employee of Bouts, stepped in between Charles Tubbs and Bouts and received a stinging blow intended for the contractor.

Bouts was married and leaves a widow and two small children in poor circumstances. Hundreds of people have visited the scene of the murder and excitement is very high.

TWELVE LIVES LOST AND MANY OTHERS INJURED

Early Morning Blaze in a Brooklyn Tenement House Causes Destruction of Life and Property.

New York, Nov. 21.—Twelve persons lost their lives in a fearful panic in a tenement building in the crowded Williamsburg district of Brooklyn at 2 o'clock Sunday morning. Two entire families—those of Mariano Triolo and Charles Polozio—were included among the victims, and when the firemen forced their way into the burning structure they found the crisp corpses huddled together in a heap.

An element of mystery attaches to the tragedy, due to the fact that no clue to the origin of the blaze is discoverable. Although the residents of the tenement who escaped were terrified by the extent of the catastrophe, none of them would talk to the police, and it was with the greatest difficulty the names of the dead were learned.

Starts in a Cellar.
The burned tenement house, which is at 186 Troutman street, is in the center of a row of three-story tenements extending the length of the block, and was occupied by Italians.

The fire is supposed to have started in the cellar of the grocery store of Antonio Giambalvo, on the ground floor. The cellar was stored with inflammable material, and the flames spread with lightninglike rapidity. All the occupants were asleep at the time, and there was considerable delay in sending in the first alarm.

Crowds Hysterical.
The Giambalvos family lived in the rear of the store, and succeeded in getting out of the building, but before the occupants on the other floors were aroused their escape had been cut off. Before the firemen arrived the fire had communicated to the adjoining tenement, but here the occupants had sufficient warning, and all escaped.

The work of the firemen was greatly hampered for a time by the crowds of frightened Italians who filled the streets. The tenants in nearly all the neighboring buildings dragged their household goods out of the buildings, and with them blocked the way of the fire apparatus.

Die From Suffocation.
All the bodies were found in the rear room of the third floor, and it was evident that all had been suffocated in their effort to reach the fire escape at the back of the building.

NEW FAD IN TOWN.

Many Men Getting a Sensible Habit. In the last few days it has become the popular thing to step in Smith Drug Co.'s drug store and get a pocketful of Wadsworth Bros. "Chico's," a 5c cigar that has caused many men to get what may be called the "Chico's" habit.

It is far more sensible to smoke a good 5c cigar like the "Chico's" and there is no other 5c cigar like it than to pay double the price and get no better smoke. It is made with a clear, long Havana filler, and is especially pleasing to the man who has been smoking a 10c or two for quarter century. It burns freely, and tastes good, and is a treat to the stub.

Try a "Chico's" and see if you, too, do not get into the habit of frequenting Smith Drug Co.'s drug store for your supply of cigars.

TEAM VICTORIOUS BY CLOSE SCORE

Janesville High School Defeated Madison by Only One Point—Janesville, Touchdown; Madison, Drop Kick.

In one of the closest, fiercest fought and scientific games that have been played here in late years, the Janesville high school team defeated the Madison high school team at the athletic park. The final score stood: Janesville, 5; Madison, 4. The locals showed up best in carrying the ball long distances, while Madison with excellent formations and mass plays made steady gains through the line, though several times they were held for downs and once within a yard of the goal line. Mull, Madison's left half, is one of the best kickers that the local high school team has played against. In kicking off against the wind he sent the piskin in close proximity of the goal line and in the first half scored a drop kick for Madison from one side on the thirty yard line. The Madison fullback with a formation of five men back of the line was usually good for a gain and the quarterback run which Madison seemed to have a great deal of confidence in, for it was used when there was danger of losing the ball, was not such an unqualified success. Twice it lost the ball and never gained more than five or six yards. For Janesville, Sennett, Galbraith, Feeley, Devins and Caldwell made the longest runs.

Madison Kicks Off.

The game started when Madison kicked off and Caldwell receiving the ball advanced it several yards. It was a steady march to the middle of the field where after an exchange, Sennett was sent around the end for a thirty-five yard run. A few more plays and Leo from his position in the line gained from a distance of several yards and crossed the line for a touchdown. Janesville then kicked off and Madison repeated the performance Janesville had gone through and on the thirty yard line Mull kicked a drop that went between the goal posts making the score 5 to 4 in favor of Janesville. Once more Madison carried the ball through the Janesville line and within a yard from the goal line were held for downs.

Blocked Drop Kick.

In the second half Janesville kicked to Madison and after the ball had been carried to the local forty yard line a drop kick was again tried by Madison but blocked by Janesville. The ball then went to Janesville and when third down was called Caldwell and Galbraith fell back, presumably for a punt, but by signal from Caldwell a fake was tried and he gained twenty-five yards. The rest of the game was a seesaw from one end of the field to the other and time was called with no change in the score from the way in which it stood at the end of the first half.

THINKS THIEVES GOT MORE MONEY

DAVID WATT TALKS OF THE CIRCUS ROBBERY.

HE TELLS OF PAST CUSTOMS

Twenty Thousand Dollars Is Not Much for a Show To Carry With It.

"If those thieves that held up the money wagon of the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers circus at Tabor, North Carolina, Saturday, secured any plunder at all they got more than twenty thousand dollars to a certainty," said David Watt this morning. Mr. Watt has had experience in the money wagon of a circus and knows the ins and outs of this end of the circus business probably better than any other man in this country. For ten years he was treasurer and ticket agent for the Adam Forepaugh show and was one year with the Forepaugh and Sells company. His term of experience extends from 1882 to 1891 when he retired from the business and has since made his home in Janesville.

The Report.

In speaking of the telegraphic report published yesterday that the show had been robbed of twenty thousand dollars by thieves and the men were fearful that they would not get their money, Mr. Watt said: "I cannot understand this. If those thieves got anything at all, they got more than twenty thousand. Why, when I was with the show I have carried as much as a hundred and fifty thousand dollars at one time in three iron safes in the wagon and one in Mr. Forepaugh's car. Twenty thousand dollars would not hardly pay off the help. Take for instance the four hundred workmen, the hundred and fifty to a hundred and seventy-five performers that receive anywhere from twenty-five to four hundred a week."

The Old Way.

"I do not know how they pay their men now but when I was with the show we never were more than two weeks behind with anyone. Of course, there are some of the employees, known as old hands, who do not draw any of their money all season and go with the show to winter quarters to set the show right for the winter. To pay these men off together with the rest would mean that money with twenty thousand dollars would be needed. This talk that the men were disturbed because their season was ended and they were afraid they would not get their money is all rot. Why there are Lou Sells, the estate of Pete Sells, W. W. Cole and J. A. Bailey, all of them millionaires, behind it and if Tabor has any sort of banking facilities a telegraphic dispatch would bring them money enough to buy the whole town with."

Do Not Worry.

"I remember on several occasions when I was with the show of going to Mr. Forepaugh and telling him that I had too much money with us and asking him if I hadn't better buy New York drafts. Forepaugh would look at me and say: 'Watt, you are the funniest fellow I ever saw. Don't you know that there is lots of money we have not got? Why worry about what we have got? Why, I have had as much as thirty thousand dollars in silver in my safes at one time. The bulk of the money handled is in silver anyway. When the show comes to a town it usually pays its bills in this specie instead of bills, as bills are much easier to handle. If they do not like a man they pay him in nickels and dimes, even if the sum is a hundred or more."

A Big Season.

"I understand that the show has had a big season. In fact, I would be willing to wager it has made a half million this year. The loss of twenty thousand dollars would not mean any delay in paying off the men; nor would it embarrass the management beyond having to telegraph for funds. The old custom was to buy drafts on New York when we could get the exchange at 1/4 of one per cent. Small banks did not at ways like to exchange silver for bills."

so we usually had lots of money with us."

"We closed in the south three seasons while I was with the show—once at Chattanooga, once at Atlanta and once at Richmond, Va. We always had anywhere from a week to a month's receipts with us and unless they are doing business on a far different scale I would say that if those thieves got anything they got more than twenty thousand. We always had a watchman with the wagon. It was drawn up on the flats with the rest of the wagons but the watchman slept inside. There never was an attempt to rob us of one cent while I was with the show."

To Sell Show.

"Owing to the death of Mr. Pete Sells, I understand the show is to be sold. I also hear that J. T. McCadden, a former part owner of the Barnum show and a brother-in-law of J. A. Bailey, is looking at the proposition with the idea of adding it to his European circus which is now organizing with English capital to play exclusively in Europe. McCadden has already secured Whiting Allen, the press man who was here with the Barnum and Bailey show this last summer, and expects to have as large a show as possible to show on the other side. The show business 'told last summer was exceptionally good for all the circuses on the road."

"We closed in the south three seasons while I was with the show—once at Chattanooga, once at Atlanta and once at Richmond, Va. We always had anywhere from a week to a month's receipts with us and unless they are doing business on a far different scale I would say that if those thieves got anything they got more than twenty thousand. We always had a watchman with the wagon. It was drawn up on the flats with the rest of the wagons but the watchman slept inside. There never was an attempt to rob us of one cent while I was with the show."

To Sell Show.

"Owing to the death of Mr. Pete Sells, I understand the show is to be sold. I also hear that J. T. McCadden, a former part owner of the Barnum show and a brother-in-law of J. A. Bailey, is looking at the proposition with the idea of adding it to his European circus which is now organizing with English capital to play exclusively in Europe. McCadden has already secured Whiting Allen, the press man who was here with the Barnum and Bailey show this last summer, and expects to have as large a show as possible to show on the other side. The show business 'told last summer was exceptionally good for all the circuses on the road."

MADISON OBJECTS TO SUNDAY GAMES

Strange Story From Capital City Regarding a Janesville Team's Actions.

(Special to The Gazette.)

Madison, Wis., Nov. 21.—A motley crowd of alleged football players came from Janesville Sunday, claiming to represent the Flower city, and played the Badger athletic club at the city baseball park. At the end of the first half the score was 20 to 0 in favor of Madison and when the game was over count had been lost, it was known; however, that the Janesville bunch had not scored and had made "first touchdown" only once in the entire game.

John Hickey, formerly janitor of the university gymnasium and now head rubber of the football team under Trainer Andy O'Dea, was head linesman. His friends think he made a mistake to officiate at a more or less disorderly Sunday afternoon affair because he is a candidate for the position of trainer of the university football and other athletic teams at a proposed salary of $75 a month. It is feared that his appearance at the Sunday game in an official capacity will not assist his friends in their efforts to get him elected.

W. S. Kiesel, a student in the university, who has been acting as clerk or assistant to Graduate Manager Kilpatrick, drawing for the "gruff" as it is called among the students, a salary of $50 a month, noted as umpire. He was clad in a beautiful snow-white sweater, which made a decided impression on the dozen or so women and girls present at the game.

In some respects the game was a rare sight. The play was nothing much but there were curial raises and between-stunts galore. In the shape of fist fights between drunken partisans of the Janesville team and the managers of the grounds. A young rowdy from Janesville was a bit unsteady with drink. He was not very drunk, but succeeded in making believe that he was awfully intoxicated. A crowd of 50 or more little boys thronged about him and with some of the largest of these the fellow became involved. He was determined to fight but the managers of the grounds interfered and forcibly restrained the drunken one. An unsteady companion came to his assistance and then there was trouble in earnest. The two from Janesville did some good fighting for a few minutes, but they were finally well thrashed and promised to sit down and behave. Time was called at the end of the first half of the game at this time and the arrival of Janesville fellows from the football gridiron was effective in temporarily stopping the fighting. While the fight was in progress the football contest was not even a side attraction in the estimation of the crowd. The subjugation of the irrepressibles from Janesville was the center of interest.

When the second half was started the two Janesville boys became prominent again and usurped attention. The younger and drunker of the two being restrained by a peace-loving Janesville man, who was begging the foolish one not to disgrace the whole "bunch." A Madison man put in the advice that the boy ought to be put out of the grounds and then the fighting was started anew. The second and less drunk of the Janesville disturbers championed the cause of his friend and soon was bleeding violently at the nose. A moment later he challenged the entire crowd of spectators to do battle with him one by one, and he was thrown over the fence into the next lot, which happened to be the back yard of a sturdy Irishman. The owner was already indignant on account of the profanity of the crowd of fighters and refused to allow the ejected one to remain in his yard or pass through it to the street, and threw him back into the athletic field. The fighters were tired and they soon became quiet and adjourned to the saloon on the neighboring corner to await the end of the game.

Nothing came of the movement to prevent this game. Sheriff McWatty was addressed by Dr. E. G. Updike, pastor of the Congregational church; A. P. Wilder, editor of The State Journal; W. J. McKay, prohibition nominee for congress against H. C. Adams, and other reputable citizens, calling the attention of the sheriff to the fact that it was a violation of the statutes to hold, participate in or attempt a football game. The sheriff refused to interfere unless formal complaint were made. The petitioners assumed that their duty was done when they pointed out to the officer of the law the fact that an unlawful Sunday athletic contest was being advertised and they let the matter drop there.

THINKS THIEVES GOT MORE MONEY

DAVID WATT TALKS OF THE CIRCUS ROBBERY.

HE TELLS OF PAST CUSTOMS

Twenty Thousand Dollars Is Not Much for a Show To Carry With It.

"If those thieves that held up the money wagon of the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers circus at Tabor, North Carolina, Saturday, secured any plunder at all they got more than twenty thousand dollars to a certainty," said David Watt this morning. Mr. Watt has had experience in the money wagon of a circus and knows the ins and outs of this end of the circus business probably better than any other man in this country. For ten years he was treasurer and ticket agent for the Adam Forepaugh show and was one year with the Forepaugh and Sells company. His term of experience extends from 1882 to 1891 when he retired from the business and has since made his home in Janesville.

The Report.

In speaking of the telegraphic report published yesterday that the show had been robbed of twenty thousand dollars by thieves and the men were fearful that they would not get their money, Mr. Watt said: "I cannot understand this. If those thieves got anything at all, they got more than twenty thousand. Why, when I was with the show I have carried as much as a hundred and fifty thousand dollars at one time in three iron safes in the wagon and one in Mr. Forepaugh's car. Twenty thousand dollars would not hardly pay off the help. Take for instance the four hundred workmen, the hundred and fifty to a hundred and seventy-five performers that receive anywhere from twenty-five to four hundred a week."

The Old Way.

"I do not know how they pay their men now but when I was with the show we never were more than two weeks behind with anyone. Of course, there are some of the employees, known as old hands, who do not draw any of their money all season and go with the show to winter quarters to set the show right for the winter. To pay these men off together with the rest would mean that money with twenty thousand dollars would be needed. This talk that the men were disturbed because their season was ended and they were afraid they would not get their money is all rot. Why there are Lou Sells, the estate of Pete Sells, W. W. Cole and J. A. Bailey, all of them millionaires, behind it and if Tabor has any sort of banking facilities a telegraphic dispatch would bring them money enough to buy the whole town with."

Do Not Worry.

"I remember on several occasions when I was with the show of going to Mr. Forepaugh and telling him that I had too much money with us and asking him if I hadn't better buy New York drafts. Forepaugh would look at me and say: 'Watt, you are the funniest fellow I ever saw. Don't you know that there is lots of money we have not got? Why worry about what we have got? Why, I have had as much as thirty thousand dollars in silver in my safes at one time. The bulk of the money handled is in silver anyway. When the show comes to a town it usually pays its bills in this specie instead of bills, as bills are much easier to handle. If they do not like a man they pay him in nickels and dimes, even if the sum is a hundred or more."

A Big Season.

"I understand that the show has had a big season. In fact, I would be willing to wager it has made a half million this year. The loss of twenty thousand dollars would not mean any delay in paying off the men; nor would it embarrass the management beyond having to telegraph for funds. The old custom was to buy drafts on New York when we could get the exchange at 1/4 of one per cent. Small banks did not at ways like to exchange silver for bills."

so we usually had lots of money with us."

"We closed in the south three seasons while I was with the show—once at Chattanooga, once at Atlanta and once at Richmond, Va. We always had anywhere from a week to a month's receipts with us and unless they are doing business on a far different scale I would say that if those thieves got anything they got more than twenty thousand. ## Coming Attractions.

It takes more than fire engines, Messrs. Jordan & Cordon and fit tanks of water and saw mills to make a play that will appeal to and please the public and at the same time convey an impressive and wholesome lesson.

"Twins on this argument that Jas. R. Garey built his new melodrama 'The Price of Honor,' which has already taken front rank amongst plays of its class, will be seen at the Myers Grand Monday, Nov. 21. He refused to rely upon mechanical contrivances or ingenious devices. He found the human heart strings sufficient to play upon and to well has he blended the different human emotions and worked out to a logical and pleasing sequence a plausible story that the curtain always drops to a satisfied public. The cast that interprets 'The Price of Honor' has been chosen with great care by Messrs. Jordan & Cordon and fit tanks of water and saw mills to make a play that will appeal to and please the public and at the same time convey an impressive and wholesome lesson.

It is curious how universal Truth is. The author of 'The Village Postmaster' took her story and characters from the incidents and surroundings of her own youth. During the long run of the play at the 14th St. Theatre, in New York, five different people were convinced that the character of Seth Huggins was drawn from their own family history. It wasn't fact, but it was Truth. Seth Huggins actually lived and said the same things, that he said in the play. The play was written to show New England character as it is, and that it does so is said to be one of its chief charms. It will be the attraction at Myers Grand on Thanksgiving, matinee and evening.

PUTTING IT STRONG

But Doesn't It Look Reasonable?

This may read as though we were putting it a little strong, because it is generally thought by the majority of people that Dyspepsia in its chronic form is incurable or practically so. But we have long since shown that Dyspepsia is curable, nor is it such a difficult matter as at first appears.

The trouble with Dyspepsia is that they are continually dieting, starving themselves, or going to opposite extremes or else deluging the already overburdened stomach with 'bitters' after dinner pills, etc., which invariably increase the difficulty even if in some cases they do give a slight temporary relief. Such treatment of the stomach simply makes matters worse. What the stomach wants is a rest. Now how can the stomach become rested, recuperated, and at the same time the body nourished and sustained.

This is a great secret and this is of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. This also the secret of the uniform success of a comparatively new remedy but its success and popularity leaves no doubt as to its merit.

The Tablet will digest the food anyway, regardless of condition of stomach.

The sufferer from Dyspepsia, according to directions, is to eat an abundance of good, wholesome food and use the tablets before and after each meal and the result will be that the food will be digested no matter how bad your Dyspepsia may be, because, as before stated, the tablets will digest the food even if the stomach is wholly inactive. To illustrate our meaning plainly, if you take 1,800 grains of meat, eggs or ordinary food and place it in a temperature of 98 degrees, and put with it one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets it will digest the meat or eggs almost as perfectly as if the meat was enclosed within the stomach.

The stomach may be ever so weak yet these tablets will perform the work of digestion and the body and brain will be properly nourished and at the same time a radical, lasting cure of Dyspepsia will be made because the much abused stomach will be given, to some extent, a much needed rest. Your druggist will tell you that of all the many remedies advertised to cure Dyspepsia none of them have given so complete and general satisfaction as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and not least in importance in these hard times is the fact that they are also the cheapest and give the most good for the least money.

ords and files, so arranged as to be conveniently accessible. This structure, when ready for use, will afford some temporary relief—but unless all previous experience in the line of departmental buildings in Washington shall be overthrown, it will be outgrown before it is completed. In that case, additions will have to be at once provided, and these in turn will be inadequate when finished.

The fact is that the country is growing so rapidly, the public business increasing therewith in a geometrical ratio, that the prompt transaction of that business is getting to be more difficult every year. The clerical force in many of the departments is inadequate; all are kept in a constant strain in conducting the current work. They have no time to properly classify and carefully preserve the records they are making, day by day, in the government service.

This is simply one illustration of the inertia that stands in the way of administrative reformation. There is stagnation and congestion in all of the executive branches, who are the repositories of all the existing knowledge as to the details of administration, dazed by the magnitude of their task and its rapid increase, plant themselves in solid antagonism to any proposition that will tend them to fresh exertions outside their well-worn ruts.

The SENTRY believes that vigorous, energetic, earnest, business men from the outside must get behind every movement for bettering conditions in Washington, and induce congress, which represents the people, to apply the desired remedies.

THE SENTRY. Note.—Responsibility for the opinions and utterances of "The SENTRY" is assumed by the SENTRY Box Bureau, of 825 Vermont avenue, Washington, D. C.

Some merchants who think it entirely proper to pay a high rent for a store in which to do business, get scared at the idea of spending money for newspaper advertising calculated to bring them business to do. Does looking up and down the street, call at the stores and make their goods known and the ones that don't, then your question will be answered.

A MISTAKE.

The county board of supervisors through a committee is considering a proposition to appropriate $25 to each dependent child that is committed to a society which makes a business of finding homes for this class of children. The argument used is that the law permits any judge or justice in the county to commit children to the care of this society and every commitment means expense to the county and this being the case it was better to limit the expense to $25.

The board does not seem to know much about the society. A man by the name of Debest appears to be at the head of it and local agents are supposed to round up the children to find them homes.

It hardly seems possible that the state would recognize this kind of work or that any official would commit children to this sort of a society.

The state supports, at liberal expense, a home for dependent children at Sparta, where children of all ages from infants to 16 years of age are committed and intelligently cared for.

The institution is not only a home but a school, for years of experience have demonstrated that a certain class of children are undesirable and cannot be placed in private homes. The result is that the state gives them a home and an education and starts them out in life.

This class of children, however, are largely in the minority. The most of them are placed in good homes and indentured within three months from the time of commitment. Then they are looked after by state agents until of age. There is no occasion for a private society in Wisconsin to care for dependent children. The state does the work better and more intelligently.

The law which compels a county to contribute to this kind of a society is a vicious law. It should never have found a place on the statute books and the next legislature should repeal it.

BRYAN ON ROOSEVELT.

The last issue of the "Commoner" contains a leading article on "Roosevelt's great opportunity," in which much is said about capital and labor.

Mr. Bryan is inclined to believe that the president is a plutocrat and not a friend of the masses, and attributes his great victory to democratic errors, rather than to personal popularity. In closing the article Mr. Bryan says:

"He owes his first elevation to the presidency to an unexpected event—the murder of a president. He owes his recent great victory largely to the error of democratic leaders. Others have therefore given him the opportunity which he coveted; how will he employ it? His place in history will depend not upon what others have done for him but upon what he does for the country. Let him read again the history of his country and note the difference between those presidents who have befriended the masses and those who have espoused the cause of the privileged class."

"The financiers and monopolists can make things pleasant for him while he is in office but they can not save him from the verdict which history will pronounce against him if he allows to pass unimpaired the splendid opportunity which he now has to render a real and permanent service to his country."

It is well for Mr. Bryan that he is able to find some consolation in defeat. The president is extremely popular with the masses and labor recognizes in him a true friend. His administration will be clean and wholesome and the people will not be disappointed.

Only half the voters in Rock county voted on the primary law and this represents the percentage over the state. When tested the law will be found to be good for office seekers. It will be about as effective in purifying politics as a last year's bird nest.

The shippers of Wisconsin are not receiving rebates and never have. Men in the same line of business are given commodity rates to enable them to meet competition from other states. This is a direct benefit to the state.

More money was spent by political parties in magazine advertising this year than at any time in the history of the country. Douglass, the shoe man, conducted his campaign through the papers and won. He has made a fortune through advertising.

Community rates enabled Janesville to have a beet sugar factory. Who is injured by it? Certainly not the farmers nor the city.

The county board undoubtedly felt that the county clerk should be rewarded for his work during the campaign.

The new Court street bridge is the finest structure of the kind ever erected in the city.

Mr. Bryan has no trouble in finding plenty of reason for Judge Parker's defeat. It will be different in 1908.

The next discussion will be over Senator Charles' successor. The complexion of the legislature will determine.

When does the primary law take effect? That remains for the courts to determine.

Colorado is having a little Kentucky experience. It seems to be a question of whether law or lawlessness shall prevail.

JOHN PARTRIDGE GORED TO DEATH

Hired Man on the Farm of Henry Butler, Southwest of Janesville, Killed by Enraged Cow.

John Partridge, a man of sixty-five years, who is employed on the farm of Henry Butler about nine miles southwest of this city, was gored to death by an infuriated cow. Mr. Partridge and other men on the farm were attempting to drive the cow and her calf from the field and the cow, which was vicious, attacked him and which both horns hit Partridge's abdomen.

After he was knocked down, the enraged beast stepped upon his chest and it was with difficulty that he was drawn from his body. No efforts to save his life were of any avail. He died shortly after the accident happened.

Another story of the absent-minded man has just leaked out. A prominent manufacturer, who is also something of a wheelman, was riding through Spring Brook when he passed a load of beets, bound for the sugar factory. Hailing the driver, the absent-minded one remarked that it was a fine-looking lot of "turnips" that he was hauling. To this comment the driver assented with a grin and upon being requested for a few "just for dinner" readily complied by throwing off a dozen or so of the beets. The manufacturer, who was wrapped in a stray piece of unwieldy package and rough roads were together the cause of considerable strenuous effort but the "turnips" were finally triumphantly delivered to the better half of the householder with a request for a speedy preparation of the same in connection with an "old-fashioned boiled dinner." It is not recorded just what comments were made in the kitchen upon the desirability of sugar beets as a substitute for turnips, but it is safe to presume that the subject has not of late been freely mentioned in this particular household.

Charles Norton Hunt Spoke at His remarkable Meeting at Baptist Church Last Night.

Charles Norton Hunt, the lawyer-archologist, was greeted by an immense congregation at the First Baptist church last evening and the meeting was altogether a remarkable one. The sweep and power of the singing betokened an awaken interest in the work which is being conducted. Mr. Hunt was at his best and alternately swayed his auditors to smiles and tears. Many, at the close of the service, expressed a new and deeper interest in the Christian faith. Mr. Hunt is to speak each evening this week. His topic tonight is "What Seek Ye?" The Bible readings will be given at three o'clock Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday. There will be no reading Thursday but Thursday evening another large throng is expected at the church. The children's meetings are held Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays at 4:15 p. m.

RUMORS CHECKED DECLINING PRICE

Wheat Nearly Back to Previous Mark
—Weekly Market Letter on Conditions in New York.
New York, Nov. 17, 1904.

Dear Sir:—A revival of the war scare and bad crop reports from the Argentine checked the declining tendency in the wheat market this week and sent prices back to nearly the previous high level, since which they have again reacted and at the close of the week show a net decline of about 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 cents.

Later advices from the Argentine have been favorable, the northwestern movement is showing a pretty well sustained volume, and northwestern stocks this week show a substantial increase. Meanwhile Argentine shipments are slowly increasing and Russian shipments hold up well, so that we seem no nearer an export demand for domestic wheat. Some authorities contend that we have barely enough wheat for home consumption, but it is our impression that with better weather in the south west prices ought to slide off until rallied by the approach to an export basis. We are not bears on the wheat market, but for the time being we would rather sell on any bulge than buy, even though prices later in the season may work up to higher levels than those yet reported.

Corn:—The corn market has shown an easier tone. The movement has continued moderate, but promises to expand materially, and December shorts have been feeling more confident, while there have also been indications that certain long lines have been switching from the near to the late positions. The snow estimate placing the crop at 2 1/2 billion bushels has been largely responsible for the decline of 1/2 to 3/4 cents noted during the week. Should wheat develop a much easier tone, corn might yield in sympathy but we hardly expect any break of movement. There is, however, one thing that speculation in these markets should not overlook, and that is the perilous position of Port Arthur. It looks as though the fall of this well defended fortress might be expected almost daily. If its fall should be accompanied by the receding of the Baltic fleet, it would seem likely the beginning of the end of the war, and would probably lead to a wave of liquidation in the grain markets that might bring about a serious break. For this reason we prefer scalping the markets on the short side pending developments following Port Arthur's fall. Oats have shown steadiness. Prices are about right and the only policy we can suggest is a scalping one.

Provisions:—Provisions have shown a little firmer undertone and gained slightly for the week. We should buy hog products on breaks. Coffee:—It has been a firmer week in the coffee market, with prices about 10 to 20 points higher. Trading has been very quiet most of the time, but toward the close of the week showed greater activity, when it became plain that the increase in the world's visible supply for the month would be less than that of last year. The world's visible is now the greatest on record with every promise of its remaining the largest for a series of years.

Karl Kirsche estimates the November movement of Brazilian at 950,000 to 1,000,000 bags against 900,000 bags actual for the same month last year. He says he overestimated the November movement by 210,000 bags. We do not think he has made the same mistake this year, but we shall be surprised if the November movement exceeds 900,000 bags. In an article published this week by an authority, who may say is as well informed and has been as hearish as any one in the market, he acknowledges that the Santos crop has been mostly marketed.

It is plain that we are entering a period of decreasing supplies. As the market has held so steady during a period on increasing supplies, as the market has held so steady during a period on increasing supplies, and as in spite of the weak statistical position the near deliveries have shown as much firmness as the remote ones, thus indicating that a strengthening of the statistical position is not being discounted by speculation in future to any greater extent than it is by the views of spot holders, it seems that as supplies decrease an advance would be inevitable.

With Europe short of actual coffee and contracts in the local market, spot holders in this country confident of their position, and very little coffee in Brazil that is not in very firm hands, the situation is certainly attractive to outside speculation. The possibilities have been so thoroughly advertised that it will be strange if the market does not become more active as soon as some of the bullish predictions are verified, and in that case we might have a sensational market for a portion of the winter. We think that we have seen the low prices for the season and do not believe in waiting for any material break to buy on.

Yours very truly,

Compare Our Methods

You will realize then why Schlitz beer is pure.

You wash a cooking utensil once. We wash a bottle four times, by machinery, before we fill it.

You use city water. We bore down 1400 feet to rock for ours.

You prepare food in the air of the room. We cool Schlitz beer in plate-glass rooms and filter all the air that touches it.

Then we filter the beer by machinery—filter it through white wood pulp.

Yet your methods are cleanly. Ours are cleanliness carried to extremes.

Then—for fear of a touch of impurity—we sterilize every bottle after it is sealed. We double the necessary cost of our brewing to give you a healthful beverage pure.

Do you wonder that we sell over a million barrels annually? Ask for the brewery bottling.

JOHN BURT

By FREDERICK UPHAM ADAMS

Author of "The Kidnapped Millionaire," "Colonel Monroe's Doctrine," etc.

Copyright, 1902, by FREDERICK UPHAM ADAMS. All rights reserved. Copyright, 1903, by A. J. DREXEL BIDDLE.

"I've thought it over," said Blake. "I'm ready to go to New York to see you." "Very well, we'll go this month," said John Burt.

It was long past midnight when Blake drove away and left John Burt to the harrowing society of his thoughts. For hours he sat before the portrait of Jessie Carden. He recalled the day when she had laughingly placed the cherished tinsy in his hand. And now she was in Paris, by the grace and under the bounty of Arthur Morris—the one man in all the world he hated.

"It's a lie—an infamous, damnable lie!" he repeated as he paced up and down the room. "It is not so—it shall not be so!"

But the black clouds of doubt again obscured the rift made by vehement hope. What reason had he to doubt the statement made by Morris? Had not Morris wealth, influence, social standing? Was not Jessie under obligations to him?

And what of Jessie? What valid, lasting claim had he on Jessie Carden? A few words spoken under the stress of great excitement, a promise of friendship and of her prayers—nothing more.

No word from him had come to her during long years. For all she knew he was dead. What right had he to expect that she should play the part of Penelope to a silent, untrodden Ulysses who refused to return from exile?

This suggested a train of bitter conjecture. Why had he not been content with a modest fortune? Why had he devoted years to the amassing of wealth which now mocked his love? Why had he despised the pretensions of Arthur Morris? Why had he failed to take steps to positively ascertain the result of Morris's wound?

The words of Peter Burt came back to him: "It is written in God's word: 'If thou faint in the day of adversity thy strength is small; for a just man falleth seven times and riseth up again!'" Had he fallen seven times? From the hour he left the old man's side until that night, no shade of disappointment had come into his life. Success had followed success and triumph had succeeded triumph. Every prophecy made by Peter Burt had been more than fulfilled.

As he recalled the past he remembered with keen joy the parting words of the old man: "You have the love of a woman I respect. She will wait for you. Do not let the impatience of your love imperil your chances."

The sense of coming victory stole over him as he stood before the portrait and repeated the words: "She will wait for you; she will wait for you." That which is not menaced; that which does not demand the danger and turmoil of a battle, is not worth struggling for.

Four weeks later John Burt stood on a ferry boat and gazed for the first time on the matchless water front and the ragged but impressive skyline of New York city.

Blake had preceded him, and had installed the permanent headquarters of James Blake & Company. He met John as he stepped from the train. The two old friends greeted each other with unfeigned cordiality. Blake was in high spirits.

"I'm glad you're here, John," he said, as they were seated in a carriage. "I've been in a awful fix for a week or more. What in thunder is my opinion on the new currency bill, John? Ten reporters and a hundred financiers have asked me that question, and I have refused to commit myself. What shall I tell them, John?"

"We'll discuss that over dinner," laughed John. He gazed at Blake earnestly, and asked: "Do you know

SKIN DISEASES

Altoona, Pa., June 20, 1903.

I was afflicted with Tetter in bad shape. It would appear in blotches as large as a hand, a yellowish color, and scale off. You can imagine how offensive it was. For twelve years I was afflicted with this trouble. At night it was a case of scratch and many times no rest at all. Seeing the good the medicine was doing a friend who was taking it for Eczema, I commenced it, and as a result the eruption began to dry up and disappear, and to-day I am practically a well man. Only two tiny spots are left on the elbow and shin, where once the whole body was affected. I have every confidence in the medicine, and feel sure that in a short time these two remaining spots will disappear. S. S. S. is certainly a great blood purifier, and has done me a world of good. I am grateful for what it has accomplished, and trust that what I have said will lead others who are similarly afflicted to take the remedy and obtain the same good results that I have.

125 East Fifth Ave. JOHN P. LEAR.

While washes, soaps, salves and powders relieve temporarily, they do not reach the real cause of the disease. The blood must be purified before the cure is permanent. S. S. S. contains no potash, arsenic or mineral of any description, but is guaranteed purely vegetable. Send for our book on the skin and the diseases which it treats. Our physicians will cheerfully advise without charge any who write us about their case.

The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

If Miss Carden has returned?" "I have been unable to ascertain that," said Blake. "I haven't seen anybody—anybody who would know. I've been awfully busy, John."

"I know you have," returned John in his old, cordial manner. "Have you secured a hut for me, Jim?" "I have fitted up a dream of an apartment for you, and have ordered your favorite dinner."

The following day John Burt began his New York career.

CHAPTER XVII.

A Foreign Mission.

Before Morris had recovered from his wound Jessie Carden had left for Europe. During his convalescence he was consumed by two passions: First to arrest and punish John Burt, and second to see or hear from Jessie Carden. Yielding to his demands, the elder Morris spent thousands of dollars in a fruitless attempt to locate John Burt.

Morris had no difficulty in obtaining from General Cardon the continental address of his daughter. She was studying in Berlin, and Arthur Morris wrote a long letter informing her of his complete recovery. He calmly ignored the events which led to the shooting, and seemed to have forgotten the rebuff he had received at her hands. The letter read as if their last meeting had been under the shadow of the maples on the Bishop lawn.

Morris waited a month for an answer to this letter and then wrote a second one, which was returned unopened. In a towering passion he went to his father and unbosomed the story of his treatment.

"You told me once that old Carden would go broke on L. & O.," he declared, pacing up and down the room. "I didn't pay much attention to what you said at the time, but I know all about it now. I've been looking over your books, governor. You've got him long on a rotten stock. Go ahead and squeeze him! You can do it. Put the screws to him! Then when he comes whining around for mercy we'll see what Miss Independence, Jessie will do! I'll be there to answer my letters then! I'll make her pay for this some day. You've got to do something, governor!"

"If you think I'm going to run my banking and Wall Street business so as to promote your correspondence with a doll-faced girl, you—"

"She's not a doll-faced girl!" declared Morris, turning fiercely on his father.

"Well, she's a girl, and they're all alike," growled Randolph Morris. "The prettier they are the more trouble they raise. I thought you told me you wasn't going to marry her. You're an ass."

The old banker lay back wearily in his chair and regarded his son and heir with an expression of deep disgust.

"I'll marry her if I want to," said Morris, doggedly. "I suppose I've got to marry somebody and she's as good as any one. What the devil has old Carden's money got to do about it? When he loses it you get it, and when you die I get it, and if she marries me she quits even. It's the only chance she's got. Go ahead and squeeze him, governor!"

"You talk like a fool," said the fond parent. "You know a lot about stocks, don't you? I couldn't bear L. & O. now if I tried, and wouldn't if I could. I'm interested in other stocks besides L. & O. If you're bound to marry, why don't you marry Thompson's daughter. He'll die in a year and leave her four millions."

"I don't want her," said Morris loftily. "You need not worry about my matrimonial alliances. Let me have five thousand dollars. I'm going to Europe."

Randolph Morris stormed and fumed and then wrote a check for the amount demanded.

Six weeks later Arthur Morris was in Berlin. He had perfected his plans, and after securing apartments in Leipzig Strasse set about their execution.

He was to shrewd to announce his arrival by a letter to Jessie, having good reason to suspect that it would meet the same reception as had the others. He retained a capable valet and commissioned him to obtain information concerning Miss Carden's daily and weekly routine.

It rained the following day, and Morris' valet brought word that Miss Carden would not venture out in the storm. His master was pleased to learn that Miss Carden was in the habit of going out alone, and that if the weather permitted, she proposed to visit Count Raczynski's gallery on the morrow.

The famous Raczynski gallery is on the Exerzierplatz, outside the Bradenburg gate, and contains a splendid collection of modern German paintings. The day dawned bright and warm after the storm, and Morris was in fine spirits when he stepped into his carriage and rode down the avenue. He entered the gallery and roamed through the halls to make sure Jessie had not arrived. He then stood near the entrance and waited.

His patience was rewarded. He recognized Jessie as she crossed the street. She was alone, and Morris stepped into the dark of the vestibule and followed when she entered the main hall. Jessie carried a sketch book under her arm, and took a seat opposite one of Schinkel's masterworks. Opening the book, she proceeded to work on an unfinished sketch.

Morris stood a few steps back of Jessie and devoured her with his eyes.

He noted the soft tints of her hair, the rounded curves of her neck, and as one spell-bound watched her deft fingers as they glided over the surface of the sketch book.

With a little sigh of disappointment Jessie dropped the folio on her lap. Not in months had she drawn with less skill. What could be the matter? She felt oppressed and under some malign influence. Instinctively she turned and looked squarely into the ardent eyes and eager face of Arthur Morris. With an involuntary cry of surprise, fear and vexation, she sprang to her feet, the sketch book falling to the floor.

"Why, Miss Carden!" exclaimed Morris, with stimulated astonishment. "Really, this is an unexpected pleasure. I am delighted to meet you. Permit me—"

And he picked up the sketch book, bowed, and extended his hand.

In those brief seconds Jessie had regained her self-possession. "You have surprised me, Mr. Morris," she said quietly, ignoring his proffered hand. "You must be aware that this is not a public reception room. We can talk without disturbing any one in the lobby."

A minute later they were in the comparatively deserted outer hall. "You have no right to follow me here or to annoy me by your attentions," said Jessie Carden, confronting him with flashing eyes. He fumbled nervously at his watch chain. "It was purely accidental, I assure you," he stammered.

"Your arrival was announced in the Berlin papers," said Jessie, coldly. "I learned this morning that you bribed my servants, and realized that an interview with you was inevitable, but I did not think you would presume to intrude your presence during my study hours. You take an unfair advantage of an accidental acquaintance. That acquaintance was terminated last summer by your acts and conduct, and I have no desire to renew it. You have had the education and opportunities of a gentleman, and must respect my wishes."

She turned and entered the gallery. Morris stood as if riveted to the floor—dazed, ashen-faced and speechless. Obeying a wild impulse, he rushed after her, but halted at the door. With a smothered oath he retraced his steps, and halting his coachman, drove through Unter der Linden.

For the second time in his life the fact had been forced upon him that there were ambitions beyond the reach of his money. The thought envenomed him. Again he made a vow that Jessie Carden should be his. His heavy lips parted in a sullen smile as he pictured her surrender. The longer it was delayed the sweeter would be his triumph.

The morning train for Paris had Arthur Morris for a passenger. It was months before he returned to New York to become a junior partner in the firm of Randolph Morris & Company.

As to covering: that's another. Here's an instance:

Mr. J. J. Hall, Sheffield, Pa., painted two houses, lead-and-oll; took 40 gallons.

Last summer bought 40 gallons Devos for the same two houses; returned 10 gallons.

The paint, that covers, lasts; it's all paint, true paint, and full-measure. Lead-and-oll is all paint but not good paint; the lead wants sin. Better paint Devos. Yours truly,

HAIR! HAIR!

These two pictures of before and after using Germ-Kin are proof of the fact that I have been bald for 25 years and now in 13 months I have grown a good head of hair. I write only one after 8 p. m. to call and see for myself.

Kewaukee, Wis. GEORGE M. WOOD.

I have given these two pictures of myself before and after using Germ-Kin. My true statement is as follows: I have been bald for 25 years. In about 13 months the Germ-Kin grew my hair and I have now a good head of hair. I write only one after 8 p. m. to call and see for myself.

Waukegan, Wis. R. P. DUNHAM.

You may see how bald, or nearly so, I was by picture showing my bald head. I was this way for nearly 25 years. I tried every hair restorative, but all failed until I tried Germ-Kin. My hair, at that time, was coming out badly, but after using Germ-Kin it came out again. This being a success, I continued until I had a good head of hair. Now I feel as well as I have ever felt and I recommend it to all who are bald or nearly bald. This positively grows hair and I have no doubt that it is the only remedy that will grow hair. I am now 45 years old. This statement is sworn to by M. K. Richards, Appleton, Wis.

Does your head itch? Use this germ in bathing in your scalp. This germ you see here is 25,000 times its natural size. However, this is just as it looks under a microscope. It can be found on every scalp that has dandruff. Germ-Kin destroys this germ and causes the hair to grow. Besides curing any case of dandruff, it also cures the scalp. It is a very short time, but it is the only cure. This bottle is as large as most dollar bottles. We give no free samples. One 50-cent bottle will show for itself. Address all mail orders to "The Germ-Kin Co., 115 Broadway, New York City." For sale by all druggists.

People addressing me will please include stamp for answer. August Frederick Schultz, 485 Cass Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

Work Clothes Easily Washed

Any woman who washes work clothes should use Beach's Peosta soap. Overalls, work shirts and the like, which are often badly stained with grease, oil and paint, should be soaked an hour in Peosta suds. This loosens the dirt and very little rubbing does the rest. You need not boil clothes when using Peosta.

BLOW UP A BUILDING INTENDED FOR SALOON

Residents of Stockwell, Ind., Show
Their Resentment When Court
Overrules County Board.

Stockwell, Ind., Nov. 21.—A bitter war against the saloon culminated here Sunday night in the wrecking of the building in which a saloon was to be opened. J. J. Guntle applied for license to sell liquor here, but the county commissioners refused to grant it. He appealed to the courts and the commissioners were overruled and the license granted. The action of the court caused a great deal of feeling, but it seemed that the people would submit, as no threats were made.

Sunday night, while the majority of the people were assembled in the Methodist church, there was an explosion that shook the structure to its foundation. Several of the windows were broken out and the people left the church in a panic and rushed into the street. It was found that the building in which Guntle was to open his saloon had been wrecked by the explosion, the entire front being torn out and blown across the street. Many windows a half block away were shattered and the saloon building was so badly wrecked that it will have to be torn down.

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 21.—The Mobile and Bay Shore train due here at 7:25 p. m. was wrecked three miles from the city through some miscreant throwing a switch leading from the main line to a soap factory. The train ran some distance into a corn field beyond the end of the switch. The engine and first coach were wrecked, but all of the coaches remained upright and only two passengers and the fireman were slightly hurt. The escape from death and serious injury is considered remarkable.

PREACHER STOPS A LYNCHING

Feeling Runs High in Roseville, O., Over Incendiary Fires.

Zanesville, O., Nov. 21.—Three alleged incendiary fires occurred in the village of Roseville during twelve hours. The money loss is small, but the excitement of the residents reached a crisis when a crowd of men gathered in the center of the town, intent upon doing violence to two men, Kid Wilson, colored, and Charles Carnes, white, who had been arrested on suspicion. Rev. Luther J. Smith, the Methodist minister of the town, mounted a box and dissuaded the crowd from doing any unlawful act. The authorities believe they know who the firebug is, but deem it unsafe to take him into custody now, fearing violence of an extreme character, and they will wait until excitement passes away before making any more arrests.
